Our prisoners informed is that the great panic amongst the Mexican troops was produced by our sudden and unexpected approach, together with the fact that we had with us artillery, which I think they never intend to face again, if they were commencing January 1st, 1818, and ending December 31st, 1831.

It is but justice to the troops, being part infantry and having with them artillery drawn by oxen, to state that the march from Los Vegos, by Anton Checo to Loquesta, a distance of between fifty-five and sixty miles, was performed in less than twenty-four hours, over a rough and mountainous country, and a great portion of the distance without even a road to guide them, to which extraordinary march may be attained.

About three years since an attempt was made to introduce them into the schools of Indiana, and they have since been put into same hundreds of out schools. The publishers of other series of school looks becoming alarmed at the popularity these books were capatring, every well aware what the result would be, if this series of books was allowed to confe in competition with theirs. They have succeeded in removing Sanders's Books from some of the schools, but the many similar notices received from different pants of the State, not only informs the reader how these changes have been effected, but the why similar notices received from different pants of the State, as on a long their own jungment at the property they intend to only informs the reader how these changes have been effected, but the whysers in the ears of certain publishers, "that theirs is a hostless victory."
